

Steve Abele

Biologist, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Reno, NV

Steve Abele is a biologist with the US Fish and Wildlife Service in Reno, Nevada. He received his B.S. degree in wildlife management from Humboldt State University and his M.S. degree in wildlife biology from the University of Idaho. He has worked most of his career as a bird biologist including the past 10 years in the sagebrush ecosystem and the past 8 years focused on greater sage-grouse for the Service.